Our Mission Statement

Our mission here at Flour Power is to make our customers feel warm and welcome and to supply them with good treats!

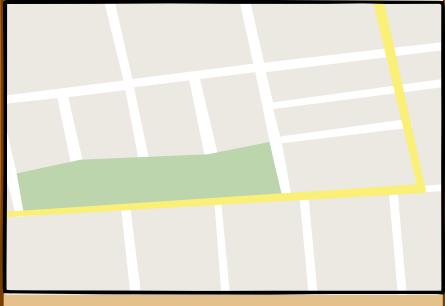

We understand the difficulties of traveling in our society that is disproportionately geared to automotives and disregards the marginalized members of our society that use public transport. Therefore we are pleased to announce the opening of the Flour Power food truck. Our food truck can be found in two different locations through the week. Bellflower Park and Starcity Mall are located in highly populated, walkable areas near public transport to allow all members of the community to visit Flour Power.

Flour Power is dedicated to be warriors against the growing menace of World Hunger. We donate 10% of all our proceeds to Bread for the World Institute.

Our Humble Origins

Flour Power was once just a pipedream to a young Geraldine Thomas in 1960. She utilized her time imagining new recipes and baking techniques. She spent her early mornings with her own grandmother, kneading loaves of bread, waiting for the oven to preheat, and stealing small bites of cookie dough. It was always the best part of her day.

In 1980, Geraldine Thomas turned into Geraldine Stewart and started baking for small family events like retirement parties and graduation dishes. She loved watching her nephews' faces light up when she brought out a towering chocolate cake, decorated with planets and dinosaurs. She realized then she loved making people happy with her baked goods almost as she loved being in the kitchen.

Geraldine used over 30 years baking in her home kitchen for her small community, whipping up tasty deserts and savory pastries. Geraldine's children -- Stevie and Fran -- watched their mother always stay positive when met with orders her tiny oven couldn't accomplish easily. She had a smile on her face even when staying awake late at night to accommodate enormous orders or waking up early in the morning to buy more ingredients when her small pantry gave out. For someone who worked as hard and as tirelessly as Geraldine, her kids believed she deserved a space that really fit her needs.

So, in 2010, along with the help of Seamus Thomas, Geraldine's husband, Stevie and Fran bought a small storefront off Fortescue Street, with an industrial size kitchen to surprise their mom. Flour Power became a reality for Geraldine after six months of hard work, cleaning and planning and anticipating, on July 31, 2010. Even then, with her own shop and two new employees to run the register, Geraldine could have never dreamed her bakery would be so successful, even after giving away ten percent of her profits to Bread for the World. She began catering large events -- weddings and funerals -- and hired a whole slew of new employees, including two more bakers. After gaining such popularity and notoriety with Flour Power, Geraldine and her family decided to branch out once again and open a food truck to feed sweet treats to neighboring communities.

On May 6, 2020, Flour Power on Wheels made its grand debut in Bellflower Park with great triumph. Geraldine's mobile bakery seemed to be just as beloved and iconic as her main storefront. It was a great shock and delight to her to be able to provide warmth and happiness to as many people as Geraldine could. She has been blessed beyond measure and can't wait to see what comes next for Flour Power.

Bread for the World is a collective Christian voice urging our nation's decision makers to end hunger at home and abroad. Bread equips people to write personal letters and emails, meet with their members of Congress, and to work with others to end hunger. Working through churches, campuses, and other organizations, they engage people in organized advocacy. Each year, Bread invites churches across the country to take up an Offering of Letters to Congress on legislation that impacts hungry and poor people. They organize advocacy campaigns to pass or block federal legislation that will help end hunger and poverty.
